Tibbles Goes Missing

Aditi was worried. Her cat Tibbles hadn't been at home when she returned from school and no one had seen her all day.

"Don't worry," said Dad. "Cats like to explore. She'll come back."

The next day was Saturday. Tibbles still hadn't come back, so Aditi decided to act. She printed out photos of Tibbles and used them to make posters. On each one she wrote, 'Have you seen this cat? We miss her. If you see her, please call in at 32 Beech Road.'

That afternoon, Mum and Aditi went out and put up the posters all over town. There was still no sign of Tibbles. Aditi was miserable — what if they never saw her again? As they were walking home, they passed a man and a little girl looking at one of Aditi's posters.

"Look Daddy," said the little girl, pointing at the poster, "it's Fluffy."

The man said that Fluffy was a cat who often visited their house. "She looks the same as the cat in this photo. She might be in our garden now."

They all walked to the man's house. As they went into the garden, they saw that the man had been right. There was Tibbles, asleep on the lawn! Aditi grinned and ran to her. Tibbles jumped into Aditi's arms and purred happily. Aditi was very glad to have her back.
